

Policy questions debated during IRC meeting

BY TERESA SCHUELKE
Activities Editor

The voting down of a second vice-president and a constitutional interpretation proposal were the main topics discussed at the Feb. 1 Inter-Residence Council.

President Bill McCarty brought up the member's approval of Jay Meacham as second vice-president, which was tabled at last week's meeting. McCarty called for a vote when another nomination was brought to the floor.

McCarty said, "At the present time, a presidential appointment, therefore, can not be made by another nomination."

The point was brought up that Jay Meacham, as second vice-president, was voted down last week and that nominations should be opened. Also brought out was that the appointment was tabled until this meeting to allow other people to express interest in the office. McCarty admitted that people have expressed interest, but didn't open the floor to nominations. Alan Behrends, a Phillips Hall representative, asked what would happen if the candidate was voted down again? McCarty replied that it would be tabled until the next meeting.

The presidential appointment for second vice-president was voted down.

Another motion that was tabled until this meeting was a proposal by Joel Brown, which would allow the executive board to review and interpret questions regarding the constitution.

The proposal read that the Inter-Residence Council reaffirms the position of the Executive Board as the review board for interpreting ambiguous phrases and implied responsibilities of the Council as stated in the IRC constitution. "This shall be subject to approval by the body only if requested in writing by five IRC representatives."

A motion was made to table the discussion on this proposal until next week. Brown called point of order; which says once a motion is on the floor, it must be voted on.

"This is not intended to affect the constitution, it is simply to clarify the procedure to follow in the event of some discrepancy as far as what the constitution says and how it's understood," Brown said.

A voice vote was taken, but was nondecisive. A written ballot was then followed, which resulted in the denial.

Other business included voting Ginger Weir in as student senate representative, naming people for the NCC, public relations and special projects committees. The spring allotments for each resident hall was also announced.

'Kittens climb to No. 1 ranking

Men stay third in rankings

BY JIM BURROUGHS
Sports Editor

Sitting pretty at the top is one way to describe the women's basketball team's No. 1 ranking in NCAA Division II.

The Bearkittens were voted the No. 1 team this week, thanks to their 19-0 record and to previously undefeated Virginia Union's loss in overtime.

This is the first time Northwest's women's basketball team has been ranked in the division polls and enthusiastic barely begins to describe the feelings of the team.

"It's like a dream," said Marla Sapp, Bearkitten guard. "It's like something you read about in the newspapers. You never think it is going to happen to you until it does. It's what we have worked for. Now that we're there we hope we can stay there."

Coach Wayne Winstead holds the same kind of optimism that Sapp does, but stresses that even though they are the No. 1 team, the future is undecided.

"Everybody is excited about being No. 1," said Winstead. "That's what we have always worked for. We haven't really had much time to dwell on it, because we had to think about Southeast Missouri State. With them being in the conference, and the conference championship being our goal, that is our priority right now."

Being on the top is not an easy task; the women have put in long hours of practice and dedication to reach where they are. Losing a game or getting knocked out of first place is something they hope to avoid.

"We've made a lot of sacrifices to get to this spot," said Kim Scamman, Kitten guard. "We're going to have to keep making more to stay there. Everyone's going to be out to get us, so we'll have to work hard not to let down."

Moving into the No. 1 spot fell out of the grasp of the men as they remain third in the NCAA Div. II polls.

The No. 1 and 2 ranked teams from last week, Kentucky Wesleyan and Norfolk State, Va., both lost but only traded places for the two top spots.

Since Northwest won last week and both the top teams lost, common sense would have the Bearcats No. 1, but technicalities made sure that the 'Cats stayed where they were.

"I think we should have been ranked No. 1," said Coach Lionel Sinn. "All the polls I've watched for 12 years, the normal thing to happen was for us to be No. 1."

"I don't understand how the No. 2 team (Norfolk State) could lose to the No. 5 team and then move into first place. I think it defies all logic."

Being the No. 1 ranked team would be nice, but the men are not really concerned that they are third. In time the breaks will go their way.

"If we keep on winning, they (the polls) can't deny us No. 1," said James Williams, point guard. "We are going to get there regardless, if we keep on winning."

Victor Coleman, Bearcat guard, said, "It doesn't bother me too much. Whether we are ranked No. 1, 2 or 3, we still have to win on the floor."

"Sooner or later they've got to make us No. 1 because we are going to be No. 1," Coleman said.

The main goal that the players stressed was winning the MIAA championship. After that everything else will fall in place.

"I feel it's a minor setback," said Tony White, forward. "We are going to keep playing hard and winning and eventually we will be at the top."

Northwest receives $1.19 million for repairs

BY DEB EATOCK
News Editor

Northwest will receive $1.19 million in state bond money for the replacement of the electrical loop and for repair and replacement of roofs on campus buildings, said University President B.D. Owens.

"About every building on campus could use some repair," Owens said, "but the area of roof repair is critical for us."

Although the University requested $2.6 million, the money Northwest received was about 10 percent of the total amount given to higher education, said Dr. Robert Bush, vice-president of environmental affairs.

"We were super-surprised with it—we didn't anticipate getting two emergency appropriations," Bush said.

Owens said the state awarded Northwest $511,420 to replace the electrical loop and switchgear, $360,316 for replacement of roofs and $237,526 for roof repairs.

The buildings scheduled for work are: the Olive DeLuce Fine Arts Building, Colden Hall, Garrett-Strong, Wells Hall, Administration Building, Horace Mann and the bus barn, Bush said.

"The bids will be out in late February or March, we'll let the bids in April and run with it at that point," Bush said. "Then we will have the whole summer to work on it."

Bush added that the bond money will not pay for the renovation of Wells Hall. "That is our number one priority for the next go-round," he said. Wells' heating, air conditioning and electrical systems have to be replaced before it is finished, Bush said.

Owens also said that the issuance of the bond money did not replace the two percent Gov. Bond withheld from the school's budget this year. The state also borrowed money from the reserves Northwest has to pay for the dormitories. Owens said that the state currently has $495,000 in reserve money from Northwest.

Budget hearings for the next fiscal year have been held in Jefferson City, Owens said, and Gov. Bond has recommended $11.4 million for Northwest and the state Coordinating Board of Higher Education has proposed $12.6 million.

Foundation raises $5,000

Northwest's annual holiday greetings program has resulted in record contributions to the Northwest Foundation, Inc. The foundation is a non-profit organization which assists the University through funding where state appropriations and student fees do not reach.

Charles Veatch, assistant to the president, said the 1983 holiday greeting campaign resulted in contributions of $5,199.50. The contributions, Veatch said, came in the form of 166 gifts from faculty, staff, emeritus faculty and their spouses.

Music group honored

The student chapter of Music Educators National Conference has received a state award from the Missouri Music Educators Association at their state convention. The award was given in recognition of the chapter's growth over the past year. Leland Lantz, president, said there are 32 members now compared to the nine members last year. The increase was the largest in the state.

At Tan-Tar-A Resort Convention Standing ovation highlights Jazz's performance

BY TERI RIPPERGER
Staff Writer

The Northwest Jazz Ensemble received a standing ovation from 450 music instructors at the Missouri Music Educators Association Convention, Jan. 21. The group was one of only 13 chosen to perform at the convention, held at Tan-Tar-A resort in the Lake of the Ozarks.

Al Sergel, director of the Northwest Ensemble, said the convention was an opportunity to let people know what's happening here and an opportunity to play for a musically educated audience composed of music critics. Although, it wasn't a competition, it was the opportunity that was important, Sergel said.

"It's a prestigious opportunity," Sergel said. He said this was the first time since 1977 that the college ensemble has performed at a convention. "It was a rewarding experience," he said.

The Northwest Jazz Ensemble played four numbers at the convention, and was rewarded with a standing ovation.

"The group communicates well with the audience," Sergel said. "They have a way of reaching out past the music. There's a chemistry in the group, and I just can't put my finger on it."

This fall, 45 students auditioned for the ensemble group. From 19 players selected, only five were new to the ensemble. Sergel said that this "high return" was a major strength for the group.

The group prepared during the first semester, Sergel said. After the break, they could practice only three times. Sergel said that the members had worked individually over the break, so the rehearsals went well.

The Jazz Ensemble consists of saxophones: Pat Crisler, Dave DeCamp, Jeff Lean, Duane Schierkolk and Shelly Steinbeck; trumpets: Steve Franta, Mike Steiner, Owen Straub and J. Scott Susich; trombones: Alan Beatty, Steve Fletchall, Dave Price, Dean Ray and Pete Graham; rhythm: Tim Curry, Greg Gresamen, Jill Johnson, Tom Kober and Nancy Tiernan; and sound technician: Naomi Bienfang.

Before attending the convention, the group toured Nebraska City, Nebr.; Sidney, Iowa; Mound City-Holt County High School; and Oak Park, Kansas City.

The Northwest Jazz Ensemble will perform in the Spanish Den at the J.W. Jones Student Union on Feb. 9 at 8 p.m. This event is sponsored by CAPs, and is free to the public.

Senate supports Harambee; Four students take office

BY SHELLY CROWLEY
Staff Writer

Student Senate declared February Black Awareness Month during their meeting Tuesday. President Roxanna Swaney attributed the decision to the fine support of the Harambee organization.

Senate swore in Shelly Vassmer of Franken Hall and Stephanie Wolf from Millikan as Student Senators.

Swaney said that Steve Wester won the election for off-campus representative with 79 votes and Deanna Huffaker won the office of secretary with 83 votes. Swaney also said that only three percent of the student body voted.

The Student Affairs and Information Committees announced that the AKL fraternity had the most donors for the Senate's blood drive and their little sis organization, the Kalley Filleans, had the the highest percentage of donors from a group.

Harambee recognizes Black History

BY ANN WHITLOW
Staff Writer

February is nationally recognized as Black History Month. Harambee is doing their part at Northwest by bringing people and events together with a full agenda of campus-wide activities.

Dyrik Benning, president of Harambee, said the organization is trying to obtain a full bulletin board in the Student Union and make a magazine mural of accomplishments of blacks in 1983-84. Also a calendar of events will be posted to let students know about the activities.

Events for Black History Month have taken several months of planning and hard work for the Harambee organization. Benning said, "We've kicked off the event a little early. On Jan. 28, there was a Black History Month kick-off dance in the University Ballroom from 8:30 p.m. to midnight."

Harambee also plans to having guest speakers come to campus who are professionals from the Kansas City and Omaha areas. Names of the guest speakers, locations and times for the lectures will also be announced later, Benning said.

No winners in nuclear arms race

Books or bombs; options are available

All of us, or at least most of us, have heard some sort of analogy; whether it was the birds and the bees or one of the many parables that Christ told to the peasants. But recently one was made that surpasses all others. One which was made during a television appearance by Carl Sagan.

Sagan was asked a question pertaining to nuclear arms control following the movie, "The Day After." The movie was aired on Nov. 20 on ABC. Sagan's analogy consisted of this: Picture two men sitting in a room. One man had 5,000 matches, the other man had 3,000. The walls, ceiling and floor were saturated with gasoline so that the smallest spark would engulf the room. So, it wouldn't matter which man lit the first match because they would both die--much like it is now with the nuclear arms race.

The latest statistics show that just between the United States and Russia, there are enough nuclear warheads--which are strategically located in both countries--to blow the world up at least three times, if not more. None of us would be around to see the second time, so what's the difference?

Reagan, in an attempt to slow down the current budget deficit, has cut all spending in every category but one--defense spending. Why would we, as a nation, want to spend more money on nuclear bombs, when between the two most powerful nations on earth we have enough now to blow the whole thing up. It just doesn't seem logical.

It doesn't take a man with too much intelligence to push a button that would obliterate all of society.

Is there anything in this world that is truly logical? Given the choice between increasing governmental spending for national defense or for public education, wouldn't it be better to choose the latter. It doesn't take a man with too much intelligence to push a button that would obliterate all of society.

Isn't that what education tries to prevent? Isn't one of the many objectives of educators throughout the country just that--trying to instill some sort of moral reasoning into the students which might prevent such a catastrophe.

But, can this be accomplished in these hard economic times without additional support from the federal government? Technically, yes, it can and probably will be done. The effect can be seen in many schools around the country. Classes, not only in college but in high school as well, will be seriously hurt by the lack of funding.

From weight control to colds.

Health Center offers services

BY MARYANN MCWILLIAMS
Staff writer

Providing a variety of health care services to students is the main objective of the Student Health Center.

The Health Center is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and is located on the main floor of Colbert Hall on the south side of the quadrangle. The Health Center is run by Dr. Desmond Dizney, Lorraine Bauman, R.N.; Sally Klaas, L.P.N. and Debbie Schuster, L.P.N.

"We are here to take care of the people who are ill, but we also educate them on how to take care of themselves," Dizney, health care physician said. "We are placing more emphasis on prevention and health care. We have increased our pamphlets and information on preventive care to inform people how to take care of themselves," she added.

For example, when a patient is given a prescription, a pamphlet is also given to inform the patient when to take the medication, what other medications shouldn't be used with it and not to share the medication, Dizney said.

"We are an out-patient clinic and we handle all kinds of medical problems," Dizney said.

The Health Center evolved in the late 1960's when athletic trainers needed nurses to help treat athletic injuries. It moved to Colbert Hall from the athletic department in the early 1970's.

The Health Center presently provides services in general medical care, venereal disease, allergy injections, immunizations, nutrition, diet counseling, weight control and mental health.

At first, a lot of people thought the Health Service was just a birth control and venereal disease clinic, but we offer many more services," Bauman said.

The Health Center began a cold clinic two years ago for students with cold symptoms. The students were to read a poster about colds located in the office to determine the treatment they needed. Many students need only over-the-counter medication, which eliminates a visit to the doctor. However, if the symptoms are severe, then physician's care may be necessary.

"We don't see that many colds though, like we used to," Bauman said.

Dizney added that the cold clinic is working very successfully.

Immunization is also an important service the Health Center offers.

Econ professor hails from Yugoslavia; conducts research to complete textbook

By TORI BUNKOWSKI
Staff Writer

Dr. Nikola Uzunov, a Fulbright scholar, from Yugoslavia, has just started teaching in Northwest's Department of Business and Government. So far, he said, he really enjoys the University.

"I was familiar with the fact that universities in America are not related to the size of the city where they are located," Uzunov said. "I was expecting the university here to be a good university, regardless of the size of the town. The important thing is how it's organized, the facilities and the faculty and the students," Uzunov said.

Uzunov will spend this semester teaching comparative economic systems and economic development. He will also conduct research to complete a textbook on comparative economic systems. "I intend to finish that book, and learn some more about the application of economic policies in America," Uzunov said.

He is waiting to hear from his home university, the University of Skopje, to determine if he will remain at Northwest for the summer or return to Yugoslavia.

Uzunov applied to the American-Yugoslavian Committee For the Exchange of Scholars in order to come to the United States to teach and conduct his research. That application, along with those of others interested in the exchange program was printed in a newsletter that was sent to universities throughout the United States.

In reviewing that newsletter, Dr. Richard Frucht of Northwest's department of history and humanities said he was very impressed by Uzunov's history and proposed program. "I jumped at the opportunity to get a person of his credentials," Frucht said.

In December, 1982, Frucht applied to the Council for International Exchange of Scholars in Washington, D.C. Northwest was one of two schools to invite the Yugoslavian professor to use its facilities. Uzunov accepted Northwest's offer in the spring of 1983. "I found out this university was more interested to have me than the other one," Uzunov said.

His wife, Mileva, explained, "We received more letters (from Northwest)."

In addition to the grant Uzunov was awarded as Fulbright scholar, he received a subsidy from the university.

According to Frucht, both post-graduate students and scholars are eligible to apply to the Fulbright program for a grant to conduct research or, in the scholar's case, to teach. Those applying to the program must submit a proposed form of study.

"Those who would seem to profit from the program are chosen," Frucht said.

The Fulbright scholar program "tries to establish scholarly and cultural ties between the United States and other countries," Frucht explained. "I would like to see it continue -- one person every year or two years. It's an opportunity that students just don't ordinarily have to be exposed to a different culture, a different point of view."

Frucht was a Fulbright scholar in 1977-78, as a post-graduate student working on his dissertation.

"One always has language uncertainties," Frucht said. "Imagine being plunked down in a completely new environment."

Uzunov, however, has had no trouble communicating with Northwest faculty and students, as both he and his wife have studied English throughout their schooling. English is one of the six "world languages" offered as foreign languages in Yugoslavia, Uzunov said. Each student must choose one of those languages, and pursue it through elementary and high school and college, he added.

In Yugoslavia, a person interested in attending college must take a series of exams, and compete to be one of the limited number of individuals who will be admitted.

The Uzunovs have three sons who are currently college students in their home country. Simon, 27, will graduate this year as an electrical engineer. Twins Dancho and Vancho, 20, are freshmen, as they had to serve the mandatory two years in the Yugoslavian army. Dancho is a civil engineering student, and Vancho is following his father in the field of economics.

After graduating in economics (the equivalent of receiving a bachelor of science degree) in 1954, Uzunov went on to receive his Doctor of Science degree in economics from Belgrade University in Yugoslavia in 1959.

His wife graduated from the College for Foreign Trade in Belgrade in 1950. She also studied economics, but gave that up when their first son was born. Retiring at the start of this year, she had served as the Chief of Exports for her country for the last 33 years.

Uzunov has taught at the University of Skopje since 1956. "The approach of the subject is the same here (as in Yugoslavia)," he said, "but the methods of teaching are different." He has found the classes here to be more informal than in Yugoslavia, with more interruptions. However, he adjusted to this difference, he explained, when he taught at Chico State University in California in 1975-76.

Although Uzunov and his wife have lived in the United States before, they are not accustomed to the below-zero temperatures they have faced since arriving in Maryville the first week of January. Temperatures during a Yugoslavian winter usually stay about 30 degrees, he said.

"Several days in a winter are freezing, but not a week or two weeks," Mrs. Uzunov explained.

They have also had to adjust to a much smaller community, as their hometown of Skopje is the third largest city in Yugoslavia, with a population of a half million people.

"The Midwest is different," Mrs. Uzunov said. "I would like to see some more of it."

Basketball: The 'Cinderella' story coming true

The Bearkittens did it again. They raised their record to 19-0 against the University of Missouri-St. Louis Jan. 28 in St. Louis.

The Riverwomen didn't stand a chance as Northwest jumped to a 48-27 halftime lead. With 2:07 left to go in the second half, the 'Kittens led by as many as 46 points, their biggest point spread of the season.

Coach Wayne Winstead said, "Before the game, I gave the girls a choice. They had to pick a point total and hold the Riverwomen there. The number they picked was 52".

Northwest had five players reaching double figures. Top scoring honors went to Betty Olson with 16, Diane Kloewer pumped in 15, while Kim Scamman added 14. Marla Sapp and Beth Thater rounded out the game with 13 points each.

Not only are the 'Kittens on a winning streak, they are also on a free throw streak. They have made 46 out of their last 52, giving them a 72.3 percentage from the line this season.

The Northwest Bearcats wiped out a 10-point lead in the game's final minutes to defeat the University of Missouri-St. Louis Rivermen, 86-80, at the Mark Twain Building in St. Louis, Jan. 28.

The 'Cats fell behind in the first four minutes of the ballgame, thanks to hot shooting from the Rivermen.

With nine minutes left in the first half, the Bearcats made a strong comeback pulling ahead of UMsl 23-22. Northwest led at intermission 45-42, behind James Williams' 14 first-half points.

Coleman led all 'Cat scorers with 20 points, 14 of those coming during the game's final 11 minutes. James Williams finished with 18 points, 14 of those in the first half and six assists. Tony White led Northwest in rebounding with nine.

The Northwest Missouri State Bearkittens continued on their torrid winning streak as they defeated Central Missouri State 112-102 in double overtime Jan. 25 in Lamkin Gym.

Central jumped to an 89-85 lead with 2:21 left in the first overtime. Kloewer bounced back with two baskets to force a 89-89 tie. It seesawed once again for 45 seconds, making the score 92 all.

The Jennies made the first points of the second overtime, but once Northwest had control of the ball, they ran six consecutive points all by Scamman, who got her last ten points in the second overtime. Central couldn't get close to the victory-bound 'Kittens, as they costed the rest of the overtime period.

Bearkitten point guard Kim Scamman, pumped in 33 points and was aided by the exceptional shooting of Marla Sapp and Diane Kloewer, who each added 29. This is the first time Northwest has ever beaten Central.

Last Wednesday night's 64-57 victory over archrival and nationally-ranked Central Missouri State University, topped off an evening of

The game was typical of most Northwest games this season. The 'Cats fell behind early in the ballgame but charged back, thanks to long-range shooting by Victor Coleman and clutch freethrow shooting by Joe Hurst, which sent the 'Cats into overtime, tied at 53-53.

Four thousand fans lined the bleachers and floor of Lamkin Gym last Wednesday night and watched the third-ranked Bearcats outgun the fourth-ranked Central Mules, 7-0, in the final three minutes of regulation play and 11-4 in the overtime period. Everything is looking fine for the tenth-ranked wrestlers as they split a pair of duals Jan. 28 in Marysville, Kan.

Northwest defeated Fort Hayes State 35-12 but then fell prey to Central State of Oklahoma 26-18. The wrestlers now stand at 12-4-1 in duals and are one win short of the school season win mark set in four different seasons.

Against Fort Hayes, the Bearcats got off to a good start as Mike Brown, 118-pounder, decisioned over Tom Zerr, 5-4. At 126 pounds, Gavin Hjerleid won his match by forfeit; Bill O'Connor, 134 pounds, decisioned over Russ Loyd 8-1, and Craig Schwienebart, decisioned Mike Ray 7-6.

At 158 pounds, Dale Crozier decisioned over his opponent Phil McComb 13-3; Miles Erickson, 167pounds, defeated Harry LeMar 22-4; Wayne Love, 177 pounds, won by a pin over Oliver Fryhover at 6:07; and Mike Flanagan, 190 pounds, decisioned over Don Witzel, 16-3.

Northwest did not get its first points until Bill O'Connor, 134 pounds, won by default over Darren Huff. Dale Crozier, 158 pounds, was the next winner for the 'Cats as he pinned Jack O'Connor at 4:29 and Mike Flanagan, 190 pounds, pinned Clint Colson at 2:45.

Northwest Missouri wrestlers upped their dual record to 11-3-1 with an 30-18 win at Westmar College in LeMars, Iowa, Jan. 26. The 'Cats had just been ranked tenth in NCAA Division II earlier in the day.

Despite having to forfeit at the 118 and 142 pound weight class, the Bearcats were on a roll. Mike Brown, 126-pounder, decisioned over Scott Burklun, 11-9 and Gavin Hjerleid, 134 pounds decisioned over Kipp Dorr, 17-1.

From there, the 'Cats started to roll and won the next five matches from Westmar. Craig Schwienebart, 150 pounds, decisioned over K. C. Kurstin, 5-2; Dale Crozier, 158-pounder, decisioned Tim Belarm, 11-3; Miles Erickson, 167-pounds, decisioned Steve Lemke, 6-2; Bill Eaton, 177 pounds, pinned Russ Lane at 3:26 and Wayne Love, 190 pounds, won by a forfeit in his respective weight class.

Bearcat wrestlers upped their dual record to 10-3-1 when they defeated Northwestern College in Orange City, Iowa, 35-15 on Jan. 25.

Mike Brown, 126-pounder, decisioned over his opponent Jim Bob Hayworth, 9-4; Gavin Hjerleid, 134-pounds, pinned Tim Hejhal, at 5:50; Craig Schwienebart, 150-pounder, decisioned over David Hughes, 4-0 and Miles Erickson, 167-pounder won by a disqualification.

Bill Eaton, 177 pounds, pinned Dave Bartell, at 2:59; Wayne Love, 190-pounds, decisioned over Jan George, 25-8 and Jeff Bradley, heavyweight, pinned Jim KeKriuit at 4:00.

Making their last appearance of the season at Lamkin, the Bearcat wrestlers gave the crowd their money's worth as they defeated Northeast Missouri State 41-9, in a dual meet Jan. 24.

Northwest's Dale Crozier, at 158 pounds, posted his 100th career win, taking a forfeit victory over Northeast's deserted 158-pound spot. For the season, Crozier is 17-12.

Southeast falls prey to Northwest powerhouse

TODD BEHREND

The Northwest Missouri State men's basketball team proved they belonged at the top of the MIAA conference standings with a convincing 61-56 win over the Southeast Missouri Indians at a packed Lamkin Gym Wednesday night.

Over 4,500 fans lined the bleachers as they watched the 'Cats open a quick 2-0 lead as Victor Coleman sank a 22-foot jump shot.

Both teams played rugged defense throughout the first half as Southeast grabbed a 6-4 lead with 15:52 left in the half.

The Indians expanded their lead to four points, 12-8, with 12:53 to play.

Northwest tied the score at 16 with 6:58 left in the half behind the pinpoint shooting of Coleman and James Williams.

Both teams stayed even through the rest of the half. Northwest's James Hurst sank a six-foot baseline jumper with six seconds to play, which gave the 'Cats a 24-22 half-time lead.

Northwest grabbed a quick five point lead in the second half, behind four free throws by Hurst and a 15-foot jump shot by Williams.

The 'Cats widened their lead to 11 points, 40-29, with 11:29 in the ballgame with Williams and Coleman keying the attack.

Southeast cut the lead to six, 40-36, with 10:43 left in the game behind a six-foot jumper and three free throws by Tony Jones.

The 'Cats extended their lead to nine points, 47-38 with 8:30 remaining, behind a layup by Tom Bildner, a 10-foot jumper and a free throw by Coleman and two free throws by Williams.

The Indians crept to within three points at the 5:04 mark, 49-46, with Donnie McLinton, Jewell Crawford and Jones scoring baskets.

Northwest then coasted to their eighth straight win and 19 wins for the season against two defeats. The 'Cats lead the MIAA with a 6-0 record. Southeast falls to 11-9 overall and drops to third in the conference.

The Bearcats were led by Hurst's 18 points and game high six assists. Coleman lead the team in assists with six while pouring in 17 points and pulling down four rebounds. Williams scored 14 points while dishing out five assists.

The Indians were led by Tony Edwards' game high 19 points and six assists. McLinton scored 12 points while pulling down five rebounds.

The 'Cats have the weekend off to prepare for the Northeast Missouri Bulldogs at Kirksville on Wednesday night in a key MIAA battle.

Despite being down by two points at the half, the Bearkittens were able to fight off a stubborn Southeast Missouri State 87-81, defending their No. 1 ranking last night in Lamkin Gym.

The 'Kittens got off to a good start after Southeast controlled the opening tip and committed the first foul which gave Northwest the first two points. After that it was quite a struggle to the half. With one second left to go, Southeast's Rachaelle Hayes went in with a six-footer giving the Otahkians a 43-41 lead at the half.

Southeast Missouri continued their dominance early into the second half leading by at least six points. That didn't last long as the 'Kittens got within two points which pressured Southeast to call a time out.

Whatever Coach Winstead said to his girls sure fired them up as Marla Sapp came out with a 15-footer from the baseline followed by a 20-footer to give the 'Kittens a 51-49 lead they never relinquished.

Not only did the girls on the floor do a good job but the enthusiasm on the bench helped get the packed Lamkin Gym fans to cheer the women on to their 20th straight victory.

Leading last night's scoring was Betty Olson with 27 points. Kim Scamman poured in 23, Diane Kloeewer added 18 and Marla Sapp tallied 15 points to lead the 'Kitten's scoring attack.

Mine Victor Coleman reaches high to grab the rebound, while Tod Gordon and a host of Southwest players look on.

Reach Diane Kloeewer (31) reaches for the ball a little bit too late. However, the Bearkittens were in time to capture an 87-81 win over Southeast last night in Lamkin Gym.
